

A Brief APA Style Guide

APA (an abbreviation for the American Psychological Association) is one method of documenting sources you use in a paper. Authors are named by their last name followed by initials. When you include a quotation or paraphrase from a source, use in-text citation in the body of your essay. For text citations, use the author's last name and page numbers appear parenthetically at the end of the sentence. At the end of your essay, include a complete reference list that provides the publication details for all the sources you used in the essay. For a
