PROGRAM EVALUATION
WGST 505001; POLS 585001

COURSE DESCRIPTION AND OBJECTIVES

This course covers both the theory and methods of program evaluation. It will provide students with a basic understanding of the approaches and techniques social scientists use to evaluate human service programs. Attention will also be given to the social and political contexts within which social programs operate and are evaluated. To reflect on and engage with the process of program evaluation, students will work in teams during the semester to design an evaluation plan that can be implemented by a local human service agency or educational program.

As an applied process of inquiry, program evaluation involves drawing conclusions about both an empirical state of affairs (that something is the case) and the worth or value of a program. The latter
