

Affirmative Action FAQs

What types of affirmative action obligations are covered by written Affirmative Action Plans?

action obligations. Written AAP components Executive Order 11246: Comparing the utilization of women and minorities to the available workforce, setting placement goals if women or minorities are underrepresented, and identifying and addressing problems.

developing and executing action-establishing a hiring benchmark.

problems; and using the z O - ç - as a benchmark to measure representation of women and minorities in the workforce. Although not required, z O - ç - implement training and employment programs.

May a contractor set quotas as a way to meet affirmative action obligations?

S z O - ç - ç forbidden. Placement goals (under Executive Order 11246) and hiring benchmarks (under VEVRAA) are not quotas. They are measures of the employment of particular groups of persons, which the contractor measures the representation of women and minorities against. Placement goals, utilization goals, and hiring benchmarks are not quotas. When a contractor fails to meet a utilization goal, it may be required to remedy potential discrimination.

What if a contractor does not meet its affirmative action obligations?

How does the federal government define "disability"?

O (2) Section 503 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and Section 188 of the Workforce Investment Act), a person with a substantially limits one or more "major life activities," (2) has a record of such an impairment, or (3) is regarded as having such an impairment.

Why are individuals with a disability asked to self identify?

The Section 503 regulations permit contractors to invite applicants to self-identify as an individual with a disability at the same time that the contractor collects demographic data regarding race, gender, and ethnicity from applicants, as required by Executive Order 11246. There is also a requirement that contractors regularly invite all of their employees to voluntarily self-identify as an individual with a disability. Contractors are required to invite their employees to self-identify every