Policy on Academic Definitions

Effective Date: January 1, 2012

Responsible University Officials: VP, Academic Affairs

Endorsed by UAAC: December 7, 2011; Updates approved April 10, 2013; Updates approved May 6, 2015

1.0 Purpose

This policy establishes/updates definitions of undergraduate-level academic programs and their curricular components, and replaces previously-adopted policies and definitions. This policy satisfies multiple institutional planning and documentation requirements of both the Higher Learning Commission and the U.S. Department of Education.

Baccalaureate Credit

Baccalaureate credit is awarded for the successful completion of credit-bearing courses numbered 0000-4999 (excluding the School of Medicine), which are offered at a level of academic rigor and sophistication requiring, at a minimum, the intellectual aptitude and maturity typically evident in those who have earned a secondary school diploma or GED certificate and who otherwise meet applicable University admission requirements for undergraduate-level study. Credit awarded for courses numbered 0000-0999 may not apply toward the completion of any degree requirement nor be calculated as part of any official grade point average.

Bachelor's Degree

A bachelor's degree is a formal academic award, conferred upon completion of all of the following University-wide requirements for the degree:

- 1) Completion of all requirements of an undergraduate core curriculum required by a College/School/Center in which in which the "first major" (see formal definition below) is administratively housed:
- 2) Completion of all requirements of one academic major;
- 3) Completion of a minimum of 120 semester hours of total undergraduate academic credit (note: unless otherwise approved by the governing dean, a maximum of 6 graduate credit hours may be applied to that total); and
- 4) Completion of any University-required non-course academic requirements (e.g. minimum score on a proficiency exam, learning portfolio, participation in assessment activities, etc.).

SLU confers the Bachelor of Arts degree and the Bachelor of Science degree.

Major (UG)

An undergraduate major is a formal, coherent and finite curricular component of every undergraduate degree program composed of a minimum of 30 semester hours of credit. Majors are focused on undergraduate-level mastery of an academic discipline, profession, or interdisciplinary intellectual theme in preparation for entry into a career, graduate and professional school, and a life of educated inquiry and service to humanity. A major:

- 1) is designed either individually or collaboratively by a department(s), college(s), school(s), center(s) or other unit(s) authorized to offer undergraduate degree programs;
- 2) is comprised primarily of courses but may also include non-course curricular requirements (such as completion of portfolios, engagement in academic assessment or testing, etc.);
- 3) is strongly recommended to require at least 12 semester hours of credit at the 3000- and 4000-levels;
- 4) is intentionally sequenced in the context of core and, if applicable, University elective requirements of an
